

Edward Palmisano, Head of International Australian Institute of Company Directors

Edward leads the AICD's international engagement across Asia, the Pacific, the Middle East, Europe and America. As a former diplomat with the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, he represented Australia at international negotiations and served at the Australian Embassy in Spain. As Director of Government Relations at the University of Sydney, he led the University's engagement with government and represented the university on overseas trade delegations.

Edward holds a BA (Hons 1), LLB and Masters of International Relations. He is admitted to the High Court of Australia, is a Fellow of the Cambridge Commonwealth Society and is on the Board of the Art Gallery Society of NSW. He speaks Spanish, is an Australian-EU dual national, and was awarded a DFAT Australia Day Citation during the Israel-Lebanon war. He is based in Sydney.